Sac and Fox Group Attends AISES Conference In Minneapolis

The Sac and Fox Nation held its first Science and Engineering Fair in February 2011. The top three Sac and Fox Grand Award Winners participated in the national science fair in March 2011. These three students, Tomi Calderon (Curtis Wakolee’s grandson), Wynona Hamblin (Ralph Hamblin’s granddaughter), and Sydney Myers (Kaye Rhoads’ granddaughter) then received an AISES Sequoyah Medal in recognition of their effort in the Sac and Fox Nation Science & Engineering Fair. These students were awarded their medal at a Sequoyah Breakfast held during the national AISES conference in Minneapolis on November 4, 2011. Congratulations to the Sac and Fox Nation science fair participants! These three students are now lifetime members of AISES.

Since 1977, AISES has worked to substantially increase American Indian and Alaska Native representation in science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) fields-as students, professionals, mentors, and leaders. AISES employs a “full circle of support” model that begins with pre-college programs, progresses into collegiate life, and then into the professional years of members and on into retirement.

The mission of the American Indian Science and Engineering Society (AISES) is to substantially increase the representation of American Indians and Alaskan Natives in engineering, science, and other related technology disciplines. AISES works to promote, initiate, and provide educational services for American Indian and Alaska Native pre-college, college, and graduate students in STEM. AISES also supports early, mid, and executive-level professionals in STEM through professional development, mentoring, networking, community service, and awards programs and initiatives.

The AISES Lifetime Membership program was named in memory of Sequoyah, the great Cherokee Indian who perfected the Cherokee alphabet and syllabary in 1821, resulting in the Cherokee Nation becoming literate in less than one year.
